Ouarzazate often considered the last big outpost before the Sahara Desert. Filmmakers and crews alike have flocked here in recent years to film blockbusters such as Game of Thrones, Gladiator, Kingdom of Heaven, Prince of Persia: The Sands of Time, Body of Lies, The Mummy, Babel, Spy Game and many other movies in and around this desert city. If visiting this locale is on your to-do list during any Morocco holidays you might plan, don't confine yourself to the city alone. There are many day trips from Ouarzazate that are worth the time.

Merzouga

This city is located 50 kilometers from the Algerian border and about 300 kilometers from Ouarzazate. While this is a bit of a drive, this small city is located near the famous sand dunes of Erg Chebbi and Erg Chigaga. Erg Chebbi reaches 150 meters tall and spans 22 kilometers from north to south and 5-10 kilometers east to west. Many camel treks ranging from a few hours to several days depart from this city. If you're interested in "seeing" the Sahara, but perhaps not for more than a few hours, visiting Merzouga is a great way to do so.

Interestingly for a desert town, Merzouga has the largest underground body of water in Morocco. In the summer months, you'll see many Moroccan tourists who visit in order to be buried up to the neck in the sand; it's believed to treat rheumatism.

Ait Benhaddou and Telouet Kasbah

Caravan routes snake throughout Morocco with a major route leading from the Sahara to Marrakech, winding through Ait Benhaddou. The city is well known for its kasbahs, and the most famous one is Telouet Kasbah. The city is a UNESCO site and has also been used in many films like The Sheltering Sky, Gladiator and Alexander.
